

To: B Taylor [REDACTED]
From: [REDACTED]
Sent: Wed 9/4/2013 5:12:19 PM
Subject: Re: Hamburger meat ok if stayed out all night-it was frozen solid...

yep!! and that is exactly what i did!! I stared at that meat and thought...it ain't worth it! Last time I was sick because I ate old deli ham from our fridge I was MISERABLE and vowed to be super careful for forever! (so glad [REDACTED] refused the ham sandwich that day!) I threw the hamburger meat down the disposal last night then jumped in the car and ran to the grocery store. Bought new meat and was still able to get dinner all prepared before [REDACTED] were home from football practice!

I will remember your rhyme! thanks :) [REDACTED]

On Sep 4, 2013, at 12:57 PM, B Taylor wrote:

> We didn't get home until later... I knew you had already made your decision. Many people thaw meat on the counter over night. I do not. Thawing in the fridge is much safer. I would bet that it was ok if it was still cold when you found it. But here is a little rhyme for you... When in doubt, throw it out!

>

> -----Original Message----- From: [REDACTED]

> Sent: Tuesday, September 03, 2013 3:04 PM

> To: [REDACTED] Nancy Taylor

> Subject: Hamburger meat ok if stayed out all night-it was frozen solid...

>

> Hey Nanc...We took out hamburger meat from the freezer last night around 8pm..it was frozen solid...we meant to put it back in fridge before going to bed...but oops...forgot...I put it in the fridge at 5am when I got up...but do you think it is ok to cook for tonights dinner????

>

> :) Les