Hey Jeffrey,

I just want to thank you for sending me to camp this summer. I didn't really think I would like it until a week or 2 passed. I made some really awesome friends that I would never want to lose. I've made this on friendship that I wouldn't trade for the world. I got into things that I wasn't really into as much such as horseback riding and dance. I really enjoyed the experience once I made friends that I could do the activities with and pushed me to try new things. I went from a beginner horseback rider to an advanced intermediate. I didn't move up any more because I twisted my ankle but I still enjoyed myself whether it was dancing or going to the beach bash they had every other weekend. I also enjoyed my birthday even though I wasn't the happiest person knowing that I wouldn't spend it with family, the friends I made there tried to make the best birthday ever and sure enough they did. I woke to a birthday song with letters, cards, balloons and candy. That night we had a western theme dance where we dressed up as cowgirls. The next day we went Universal Studios on the excursion and ate at the HardRock Cafe, the whole restaurant sung me happy birthday and I got a free dessert. I was so sad to leave all of my new friends behind, I was literally in tears saying by to everyone. I just want to say thank you again for the experience and I hope to go back next year. Oh! I wanted to ask if I can go to the ranch to go horseback riding again?
