=div>Dear [REDACTED]:

Hello, how are you? I hope you ar= having a very nice end of the week.

I'= David Lopez, and I'm a journalist from Madrid, Spain, contributor of =he spanish edition of Vanity Fair. I know I'm not the first journalist=reaching you these days, but i've been waiting a few days to write you= hoping that you don't feel very invade because of this message. I'=m writing you to ask you for your kind help. I've been asked to write = long feature for Vanity Fair about what is happening with the Epstein cas= but specially focused in prince Andrew of UK, and I'm writing you to =sk you for your help for it.

I know other c=lleagues have been asking you for interviews, but I also would like to do =t. I guess you probably don't want to do it, but I would like to ask y=u in case you could be considering maybe doing just one interview to stop =ther interview requests. In case that could be your position, I would be g=ad if you could consider doing it with Vanity Fair. But, of course, I woul= be glad to discuss and talk any doubt you could have, by email or by phon=, and of course with absolute discretion, even in case you finally could r=ject the proposal.

And if not, if you don	t want to do it, something I of course absolutely respect, I would like =o ask you for your help, asking you if you could help me off the record, w=th the guarantee that nobody could know that have talked and not publishin= your name in my story. I know and understand you don't know me, so yo= can't trust of me. The only thing I can tell you is that I'm a ve=y serious journalist and fair, and that I would ever do anything to damage=you. I've done a large number of stories, that you can find googling m= name and the story, with a large number of relevant people, from the Dala= Lama, to infamous murderer Charles Manson, who granted me an interview fo=r years ago.

Of course, I would also be glad to send you as further details about me or my work as you could need, as well as any prove could make you trust on me if you could talk with me. I hope you could consider this request, but let me thank you in advance at least your time reading my message.

warm regards from Madrid

David Lopez
